This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

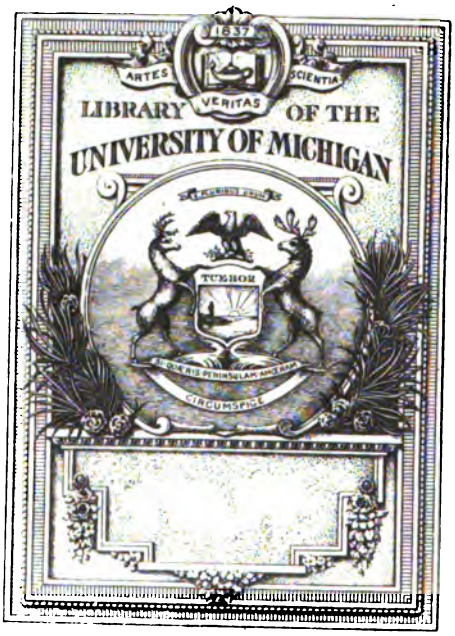
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

B 50161 4

UNIV. OF MICH.



1837
ARTES
SCIENTIA
VERITAS
LIBRARY OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN
TUEBOR

828
T556

265

828
T556wr

THE WREATH of FASHION,

OR, THE

Art of Sentimental Poetry.

——————Demetri, teq; Tigelli,
Discipularum inter jubeo plorare cathedras.

HORACE.

Lloyd, Richard

LONDON:

Printed for T. BECKET, Adelphi, in the Strand.

MDCCLXXVIII.

[PRICE ONE SHILLING.]

828
T556wr

English
Pickering
2-18-27
14414

ADVERTISEMENT.

THE following lines were occaſioned by the Author's having lately ſtudied, with infinite attention, ſeveral faſhionable productions in the Sentimental ſtile; in moſt of which, a miſapplication, not a defect, of talents ſeems to have betrayed their Authors into ſome degree of falſe Taſte. For example. A Noble Author has lately publiſhed his works, which conſiſt of three compoſitions. One, an Ode upon the death of Mr. Gray: the two others, upon the death of his Lordſhip's Spaniel.

But the reigning faſhion in modern poeſy is Sentimental Panegyrick on Married Beauties. This appears in a thouſand various Shapes; from Bouts Rhimeès on the wou'd-be Sappho of Bath, up to Doggerel Epiſtles to the lovely Amoret.

In attempting to ridicule this modiſh folly, it is ſcarcely neceſſary to apologize to the ſeveral Perſonages of the Sentimental train, for introducing their names. When a Poet announces himſelf, and publickly publicly wears his Laurels, He is lawful game for the Critics: And it makes no difference, whether his works come from the Preſs, or, according to Sir Benjamin Backbite's ſyſtem, "circulate in Manuſcript." Beſides, to canvaſs the ſlighter imperfections, either of ſtile or of conduct, ſeems to be the limit of poetical cenſure. It is only the deſperate Satyriſt, whoſe invenomed pen ſtrikes at the character and honour of Individuals, that perverts and diſgraces Poetry:---Such aſperſions, if well founded, are too groſs for the tribunal of the Muſes; and if, (as is generally the caſe) they are utterly falſe, they recoil not only on the Author, but on the very art itſelf, which can ſo eaſily be perverted to ſo bad a Purpoſe.---- But who can be hurt by a Critique on his Charades and Rebuſſes?---An imputation of falſe Taſte may not be very pleaſant, but it never can ſeriouſly offend Men of ſenſe and good-breeding: Both which qualities, as the Author agrees with all the world in acknowledging his Perſonages to poſſeſs in the higheſt degree, ſo he requeſts that not only they, but the few others who may happen to read his Poem, will acquit him of any intention to give the ſlighteſt offence.

THE

THE

WREATH of FASHION.

WHEN firſt the Muſe recorded Beauty's praiſe
In glowing numbers, and enraptur'd lays,
Sweet was the Poet's ſong; undeck'd by art;
For Love was Nature, and his theme the heart.
At Beauty's ſhrine how brightly Genius glow'd!
There, her wild-wreaths luxuriant fancy ſtrew'd,
Whoſe flowrets, wak'd by Love's enliv'ning ray,
Scatter'd with native ſweets the artleſs lay.
Such were the ſtrains th'enamour'd Ovid ſung;
Such the fond lays that flow'd from Prior's tongue:
Nor of its beſt reward was verſe beguil'd,
When Julia own'd its pow'r, and Chloe ſmil'd.

Far other lays denote the modern Bard---
Nor love his theme---nor Beauty his reward:
His temp'rate verſe a gentler homage pays,
And ſighs ſerenely for unfeeling praiſe.

This purer taſte, this philoſophic art,
(If thou, O Sentiment! thy aid impart)
The Muſe ſhall ſing---attend ye glitt'ring train
Of ſighing Beaux, nor ſcorn the votive ſtrain;
Tho' harſh the verſe, tho' rude the unpoliſh'd lay,
Soft is the tender ſcience they diſplay.

First, for true grounds of Sentimental lore,
The ſcenes of modern Comedy explore;
Dramatic Homilies! devout and ſage,
Stor'd with wiſe maxims, "both for youth and age."
Maxims, that ſcorning their old homely dreſs,
Shift from plain proverbs to ſpruce ſentences.
But chief, let Cumberland thy Muſe direct;
High Prieſt of all the Tragic-comic ſect!

Mid darts and flames his Lover cooly waits;
Calm as a Hero, cas'd in Hartley's plates;
'Till damp'd, and chill'd, by ſentimental ſighs,
Each ſtifled paſſion in a vapour dies.

Hence form thy taſte, hence ſtrew thy temp'rate lays,
With moral raptures, and ſententious praiſe.

Thus ſkill'd, with critic care thy ſubject chooſe;
A kindred theme, congenial to thy Muſe.
No giddy Nymph, of youth and beauty vain,
But ſome fair Stoic, link'd in Hymen's chain:
Serene and cold; by wiſe Indiff'rence led
To a rich Title, and a---ſep'rate bed.
Now, ſick of vanity, with grandeur cloy'd,
She leans on Sentiment, to ſooth the void:
Deep in Rouſſeau, her purer thoughts approve
The Metaphyſics of Platonic Love.
Thine be the taſk, with quaint, fantaſtic phraſe,
To variegate her unimpaſſion'd praiſe.

Poetic

Poetic Compliments from Sonnets cull---
Harmonious quibbles, logically dull!
True to their age of Paradox, they chime
Problems in verſe, and ſophiſtry in rhyme---
Yet, thro' theſe lymbecks, Cowley's patient Muſe
From mimic ſighs diſtill'd Caſtalian dews:
So Spencer toil'd, to ſooth the Royal Maid;
So hapleſs Petrarch wept his Laura's ſhade.

But hence, tame Precept!---let example lead
The modiſh Poet to his glorious meed:
Haſte, to the radiant ſhrine of Faſhion, haſte!
There, form thy genius, there, correct thy taſte.

And lo! the glitt'ring Altar ſtands confeſt!
Looſe o'er the Goddeſs floats her motley veſt:
As Flora, gay, as Iris, wildly bright,
Its varying luſtre ſtrikes the dazzled ſight.
Here, Vanity, with flow'rs and feathers crown'd,
Sports with the Seaſons thro' their airy round.

Here,

Here, ſpurious Art and mimic Science pour
Whims of a day, and theories of an hour.
The Goddeſs ſmiles; for, lo! ev'n Poets trace
Her local charms, her temporary grace---
Above the reſt, how fondly ſhe regards
Her fav'rite train, the Sentimental Bards!

On a ſpruce pedeſtal of Wedgwood ware,
Where motley forms, and tawdry emblems glare,
Behold ſhe conſecrates to cold applauſe,
A Petrefaction, work'd into a Vaſe:
The Vaſe of Sentiment!---to this impart
Thy kindred coldneſs, and congenial art.
Here, (as in humbler ſcenes, from Cards and Gout, Millar convenes her literary Rout)
With votive ſong, and tributary verſe,
Faſhion's gay train her gentle rites rehearſe.
What ſoft poetic incenſe breaths around!
What ſoothing hymns from Adulation ſound!

Here,

Here, placid Carliſle breaths his gentle line,
Or haply, gen'rous Hare, re-echoes thine:
Soft flows the lay; as when, with tears, He paid
The laſt ſad honours to his---Spaniel's ſhade!
And lo! he graſps the badge of wit, a wand;
He waves it thrice, and Storer is at hand;
Famiſh'd as pennance, as devotion pale,
Plaintive, and pert, He murmurs a Love-tale.
Fitzpatrick's Muſe waits for ſome lucky hit;
For, ſtill the ſlave of Chance, He throws at wit.
While Townſhend his pathetic bow diſplays,
And Princely Boothby ſilent homage pays.

With chips of wit, and mutilated lays,
See Palmerſton fineer his Bout's Rhimeès.
Fav'rite of ev'ry Muſe, elect of Phœbus,
To ſtringC harades, or fabricate a Rebus.
Bereft of ſuch a guide, old Ocean, mourn
Thy fading glories, and thy laurels torn!*

* Upon Lord Palmerſton's appointment to the Treaſury, Lord Mulgrave ſucceeded to his Place at the Treaſury Board. —" Mira canam; Sol occubuit, nox nulla ſecuta eſt."——

'Twas

'Twas Palmerſton repell'd each hoſtile wrong,
Like Ariel, wrecking Navies with---a Song;
But ſee, by pitying Fate his loſs ſupplied;
For Mulgrave joins where ſenſe and Sandwich guide.
Mulgrave! whoſe Muſe nor winds nor waves controul,
Could bravely pen Acroſtics---on the Pole.
Warm with poetic fire the Northern air,
And ſooth with tuneful raptures---the great Bear;
Join but his poetry to Burgoyne's proſe,
Armies ſhall fall aſleep, and Pyrates doze.
So when the rebel winds on Neptune fell,
They ſunk to reſt, at ſound of Triton's ſhell.

" If Placemen thus poetic honours prize,
" Shall I be mute?" (the laureat Whitehead cries.)
" What if ſome rival Bard my empire ſhare!
" Yet, yet, I tremble at the name of Clare †.

" Pindar

† Whoever has read his Lordſhip's verſes, preſented to her Majeſty, with a gift of Iriſh Poplin, and that too on a New Year's Day, will not wonder at the jealouſy and apprehenſion the Laureate expreſſes of ſo formidable a rival.—The recollect

" Pindar to Clare had yielded---ſo did I---
" Alas, can Poetry with Poplin vie!
" Ah me! if Poets barter for applauſe,
" How Jerningham will thrive on flimſy gauſe!
" What tatter'd tinſel Luttrell will diſplay!
" Carmarthen ſatten---Carliſle paduaſoy!
" Garrick will follow his old remnant trade;
" He'll buy my place with Jubilee brocade.
" While Anſtey, the reverſion to obtain,
" Vamps his Bath drugget, till he ſpoils the grain.
" Periſh the thought! hence, viſionary fear!
" Phœbus, or Phædrus, ſhall old Whitehead cheer.
" Behold their nobler gift---be this preferr'd!"
---He ſaid---and proudly brandiſh'd the Goat's beard,
Then dropt it in the Vaſe---immers'd it falls
Mid Sonnets, Odes, Acroſtics, Madigrals:

lection of the Poplin leads to a digreſſion, in the Pindaric ſtile of all Laureats, on the fatal conſequences that might follow from eſtabliſhing Lord Clare's method of tacking a Preſent to every Poem—but the Laureate recovers his ſpirits, by thinking of the laſt production of his own Muſe—the Goat's Beard—ſpun from Ten lines of Phædrus, to Four Hundred of Whitehead.———

A motley heap of metaphorick ſighs---
Laborious griefs, and ſtudied extaſies---
Yet hence how warm each tuneful Suppliant's claim!
What palpitations for his mite of fame!
Alas! regardleſs of their equal toils,
Faſhion ſtill wildly ſcatters random ſmiles.
And Colman may (if Billy Woodfall's by
To prop him up) attract her vagrant eye.
Behold, one Dunce, by her profound decree,
Supreme Dictator of the Coterie:
Prim, plauſible, oracular, and ſage,
The native Texier of the wond'ring age!
The ſolemn coxcomb never talks---his frown
Is inſtant obloquy, his ſmile renown:
Words would degrade this literary God:
He gives his fiat with a ſilent nod.

Another's fame more gentle honours tell;
Familiar Critic of each bright Ruelle!

Soon as the orient beam of Beauty's ray
Diſcloſes, juſt at noon, the dawn of day;
And Devonſhire wakes, and Piccadilly's gay;
Perch'd at her Grace's toilet, Minim ſits,
The little Scholiaſt of the female Wits.
Tir'd of conjecture, and perplex'd with doubt,
To him they fly---to make a riddle out;
To pierce a paragraph's myſterious vail;
And eke out Scandal's heſitating tale.
With conſcious pride the flippant Witling ſhares
His motley taſk of miſcellaneous cares;
Expounds Charades, thro' cloſe detraction pryes,
Conſtrues initials, and the blanks ſupplies.
And oft, with varied art, his thoughts digreſs
On deeper themes---the documents of dreſs:
With nice diſcernment, to each ſtile of face
Adapt a ribbon, or ſuggeſt a lace;
O'e Granby's cap bid loftier feathers float,
And add new bows to Devon's petticoat.---

Others,

Others, reſolv'd more ample fame to boaſt,
Plant their own Laurels in the Morning Poſt.
Soft Evening dews refreſh the tender green:
Paſs but a Month, it ſwells each Magazine;
'Till the luxuriant bows ſo wildly ſhoot,
The Annual Regiſter tranſplants the root---
But theſe are ſpurious honours, not the true:
Who ſhall obtain The Wreath of Faſhion---who?

The wily Charles long flouriſh'd o'er the reſt;
Expert to argue or to flatter beſt:
For, born a Diſputant, a Sophiſt bred,
His Nurſe He ſilenc'd, and his Tutor led:
But hail'd, with filial duty's pious ſenſe,
His Sire's beſt gift---deluſive Eloquence.
That art to cheriſh, with a laviſh pride
His kindred Genius ev'ry pow'r ſupplied:
Perſuaſion's breath---to ſwell the Stateſman's ſail:
Or, if his fancy veer, reta d the gale.
Soft words---to mollify the Miſer's breaſt,
And lull relenting Uſury to reſt.

Bright beams of wit---to ſtill the raging Jew ;
His blackning miſts diſſolve to golden dew,
Teach him to dun no more, and lend anew !

Here, Charles his native eloquence refin'd ;
Pleas'd at the Toilet, in the Senate ſhin'd :
And North approv'd---and Amoret look'd kind.
'Till, fond too ſoon his ſelfiſh pride to trace,
He loſt at once his laurels and---his place.

At Faſhion's Shrine, behold a gentler Bard,
Gaze on the myſtic Vaſe with fond regard---
But ſee, Thalia checks the doubtful thought.
" Canſt Thou (ſhe cries) with ſenſe, with genius fraught,
" Canſt Thou to Faſhion's tyranny ſubmit,
" Secure in native, independant wit ?
" Or yield to Sentiment's inſipid rule,
" By Taſte, by Fancy, chac'd thro' Scandal's School ?
" Ah, no !---be Sheridan's the comic page ;
" Or let me fly with Garrick from the Stage."

Haſte

Haſte then, my Friend, (for let me boaſt that name)
Haſte to the op'ning path of genuine Fame:
Or, if thy Muſe a gentler theme purſue,
Ah, 'tis to Love, and thy Eliza, due!
For ſure the ſweeteſt lay ſhe well may claim,
Whoſe Soul breaths harmony o'er all her frame;
While wedded Love, with ray ſerenely clear,
Beams from her eye, as from its proper ſphere.

---But thou, for whom the Muſe firſt tun'd the lyre,
Votry of Sentiment, do Thou aſpire,
With ſtudious toil, to win, that bright reward,
The Wreath of Faſhion for her choſen Bard.
Not rudely wove with Nature's ſhort-liv'd ſtore,
(The ſimple meed her humble Poet wore)
But ſpruce and trim, as ſuits thy kindred pow'rs,
With mimic buds, and artificial flow'rs.

Bleſt Wreath! whoſe flowrets dread no vulgar doom
Of fading hues, or tranſitory bloom;

Above

Above the fleeting pride of Flora's day,
Thy vivid foliage never can decay!
There vi'lets, pinks, and lilies of the vale,
Deſpiſe the ſultry beam, or chilly gale;
There, fix'd as Archer's rouge, the mimick roſe,
With perſevering bluſh, for ever glows;
There myrtles bloom, that ſhame the Cyprian fields;
There bays, immortal as Parnaſſus yields---

Triumphant art! Let vanquiſh'd nature mourn
Her loſt ſimplicity, o'er Shenſtone's urn:
With ſympathetick ſorrows, on his tomb
Let the pale primroſe ſhed its wild perfume;
The cowſlip droop its head; and all around
The with'ring violet ſtrew the hallow'd ground----
For, mute the ſwain, and cold the hand, that wove
Their ſimple ſweets to wreaths of artleſs love----
Simplicity with Shenſtone died!---

THE END.

Juſt publiſh'd, Price 1 s.

By T. Becket.

The SECOND EDITION of

THE

PROJECT.

A POEM.

DEDICATED TO

DEAN TUCKER.

Verum, ubi, tempeſtas, et cæli mobilis humor
Mutavêre vias, et Jupiter uvidus Auſtris
Denſat erant quæ rara modo, et quæ denſa, relaxat;
Vertuntur ſpecies animorum;——— VIRGIL.